

MAY 3 1961

NEW YORK TIMES

Approved For Release 1999/09/17 : CIA-RDP75-00149R000200010001-1

STATINTL

EXECUTIVE SESSION Allen W. Dulles, left, head of the Central Intelligence Agency, confers with Senator J. W. Fulbright, chairman of Senate Foreign Relations Committee, before giving closed-door testimony on the agency's role in the recent Cuban invasion.

President Names Killian To Coordinate Intelligence

By WALLACE CARROLL

WASHINGTON, May 2.—President John F. Kennedy today selected Dr. James E. Killian Jr. to lead the permanent interagency board that monitors the government's intelligence activities. Dr. Killian is chairman of the Corporation of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The selection is the latest in a number of steps taken by President Kennedy to restore confidence in the intelligence services after the agency's unsuccessful attempt to overthrow a counter-revolution in Cuba.

There were developments relating to intelligence problems today on Capitol Hill.

1. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee in closed session questioned Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, on the agency's role in the Cuban rebel landings. The committee also questioned J. Edgar Hoover, Jr., a deputy director, who was in general charge of the

2. Support increased in the Senate for a resolution introduced by Eugene McCarthy, Democrat of Minnesota, to set up a joint congressional committee to oversee the government's intelligence and information programs.

3. In House of Representatives, support for which President Kennedy has picked Dr. Killian to lead the board of consultants on foreign intelligence activities.

This is a board set up in 1954 by President Eisenhower to keep permanent watch over the Central Intelligence Agency and all other agencies engaged in foreign intelligence.

Dr. Killian was the board's first chairman and served from 1955 to 1958. He was succeeded by Maj. Gen. John E. Hull, former commander of the United States forces in the Far East and president of the Manufacturing Industries Association.

He will succeed General William P. Baker, vice chairman for research, Bell Telephone Laboratories, Murray Hill, N. J. Admiral Richard